

Callum's story

Callum's parents are getting divorced. He lives with his mum and brother and sees his dad every other weekend.

When they told me they were splitting up I couldn't believe it. I knew they'd been fighting a lot, but I was sure they would sort it out. When he left, I felt like he'd abandoned us. He has been good at keeping in touch though, and we see each other normally every two weeks, which has made me feel better.

familymediation